

20 Element Story: Victor Teh Creations

lolz

A long time ago, in a galaxy far far away, Einsteinium left his home with a nickel to buy a pickle.

While walking down the golden brick road in his village, he dropped the nickel and noticed it was made out of boron and he was a moron because he dropped it.

When he finally arrived at the local store, he noticed the shop owner was flying and in the air, he must have inhaled some helium. What a bum bum! He took a carbon stick, and jabbed it right on the owner's stomach and all the helium came out. The store keeper thanked him and to show his gratitude he gave him a tin bin to store his garbage in. Einsteinium gladly took the tin bin and continued shopping in the store. He was amazed to find titanium rackets and aluminum hats. In the back of the store, he picked up gold, silver and platinum jewelry. Then he came to the isle of pickles. He grabbed a jar and went to pay for all the stuff he had accumulated. When he grabbed his money to pay, he noticed he only had one nickel, he only came for some pickles, but now he doesn't need them anymore because he is a real pickle himself.

Later that day, he went to the neon light show. He found himself a nice seat and had some food so his body would be full of calcium, iron and zinc. The show started out with performances from the Europium team. Their act was called the Xenon act and was very spectacular. After, the Americium team did their act. They took neon glow sticks, and froze them using liquid nitrogen and smashed them everywhere creating amazing lighting effects. Half way through the show, berkelium came and sold some hamburgers. The last team was from Asia. They used their technetium technology to use computers to control neon lights that produced the best effects. Everyone stood up and gave them a standing ovation. The Asian team thanked their supporters and left all of them with mercury batteries.

On the way home from the show, he encountered Rutherfordium. Rutherfordium slapped him with his aluminum glove and proposed a duel. He wanted to fight Einsteinium to see who is a greater scientist.

Einsteinium instantly took out his pocket PC that had a 4 core silicon chip and made some calculations. While he was doing so, Rutherfordium shot a beam of electrons at him. Einsteinium being the smartest man ever alive knew that electrons have negative charge and would only reflect off other negative charges and instantly put up a shield of electrons and reflected Rutherfordium's own attack back at him. Rutherfordium's instantly vanished into nothing but atoms of sulfur and was never to be seen again.

That night, Einsteinium couldn't fall asleep because he was thinking. Thinking maybe he had killed an important scientist and did harm to the world. He got out of his bed and wanted to go see what he could do to reverse what he did. But after a few steps he turned around again and started walking to his bed. He jumped into his bed like he had been stabbed by lead and starred up into his skylight shouting "Meh! Out with the old and in with the nucleus."

If you were not smart enough to notice, in paragraph 4, berkelium's atomic symbol is Bk like burger king. lolz